The Institute for Regional Conservation wishes to thank all of the property managers and owners for their aid and cooperation in this study. We also wish to thank Joy Klein and David W. Hall for assisting us with some of our field surveys.

Introduction:

The Richmond Pine Rockland (“Richmond”) comprises the majority of four square miles of land in central Miami-Dade County, roughly bounded by S.W. 152 St. to S.W. 184 St., and S.W. 117 Ave. to S.W. 137 Ave. This region contains approximately 853 acres of pine rocklands, or approximately 21% of the pine rockland acreage remaining in Miami-Dade County outside of Everglades National Park (DERM 1994).

Richmond was formerly occupied by the Richmond Naval Air Station, a military base during World War II. Since that time it has been divided among numerous public and private agencies. Only three parcels can be considered preserves, Larry & Penny Thompson Park, Metro-zoo, and the Gold Coast Railroad Museum, all owned by Miami-Dade County, which contain approximately 140 and 216 acres of pine rockland respectively. There are currently 11 properties not owned by Miami-Dade County at Richmond:

Two federally listed endangered plant species are known from Richmond, Small’s polygala (Polygala smallii) and deltoid spurge (Chamaesyce deltoidea ssp. deltoidea). Detailed surveys for these two species were conducted in the early 1990’s (DERM 1994). Comprehensive floristic surveys of each property within Richmond were not conducted. While many additional rare plant species are known from Richmond, their status there has not been previously assessed. These rare species include three species now being considered for federal listing, Blodgett’s wild mercury (Argythamnia blodgettii), Mosier’s false boneset (Brickellia mosieri), and Twospike crabgrass (Digitaria pauciflora) (Bradley & Gann 2000), as well as a number of species listed by the State of Florida and the Florida Natural Areas Inventory and the Institute for Regional Conservation. Knowing which properties contain rare plant species and their population sizes is extremely important in managing those properties.

Study Design:

1. Contact owners of all non-county held properties at the Richmond Pineland Complex for permission to access properties.
2. Survey the non-county owned properties in the Richmond Pine Rocklands producing species lists for individual parcels and collecting occurrence data for non-federally listed rare species. Field biologists will walk transects across each property in order to fully cover all available habitat types on each property.
 - a) Make list of all plant species on property.
 - b) Estimate population sizes on a \log_{10} scale of all plant species that are federally listed, state listed, Florida Natural Areas Inventory tracked, and Institute for Regional Conservation (IRC) ranked as imperiled or critically imperiled in southern Florida.

Results:

Eleven properties were surveyed during this study. Nine of these properties are owned by the federal government, one is state owned, and one is privately owned. We were able to survey all non-county properties at Richmond. One of these properties, the former Naval Observatory, now owned by GSA, is being sold to the University of Miami.

A total of 376 native and naturalized plant species were recorded in our surveys. Of these 280 (74%) are considered native to Richmond and 96 (26%) are considered exotic. The number of plant species on each property ranged from 137-249 species, with an average of 175. The number of native plant species ranged from 109-203 species with an average of 149. The number of exotic plant species ranged from 8-52 with an average of 26.

Two plant species listed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service were recorded, deltoid spurge (Chamaesyce deltoidea ssp. deltoidea) and Small's polygala (Polygala smallii). Thirty-three plant species listed by the State of Florida as Threatened or Endangered were recorded. Twenty-two plant species listed by the Florida Natural Areas Inventory (FNAI) as critically Imperiled (S1) or Imperiled (S2) in Florida were recorded. Twenty-seven species considered Critically Imperiled (R1) or Imperiled (R2) in southern Florida by the Institute for Regional Conservation were recorded. Fifty-two rare plant species were recorded at Richmond (Table 21), 14% of the native plant species recorded.

Three plant species being considered for listing by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service have been found at Richmond, Blodgett's wild mercury (Argythamnia blodgettii), Mosier's false boneset (Brickellia mosieri), and Twospike crabgrass (Digitaria pauciflora) (Bradley & Gann 2000). During these surveys Mosier's false boneset was found on two properties, the U.S. Naval Observatory and the Luis Martinez U.S. Army Reserve Station. Blodgett's wild mercury was not found on any of the eleven properties, although it is known from Larry & Penny Thompson Park. Twospike crabgrass was discovered in 1995 at the Luis Martinez U.S. Army Reserve Station in marl prairie. Only one plant was discovered at this station. Subsequent surveys before and during this study have failed to relocate the plant. It is presumed to be extirpated at Richmond, and is now found only in Everglades National Park.

Plant inventories for each of the eleven properties surveyed are provided in Tables 1 – 11. Previous surveys, when available, were studied and incorporated into these tables. References are listed for each table if applicable. Lists of rare plant species on each property are provided in Tables 12 – 22. Population size estimates on a \log_{10} scale of each of these species are noted.
